The legislature adjourned Friday afternoon until Monday morning.

Curtis Guild jr., formerly governor of Massachusetts, later ambassador to Russia, and one of New England's most prominent men, is dead.

Henry Ringling, one of the world's most famous showmen, has bought property in Eustis, and will establish a winter home in that pretty town.

Caranza wants the United States to refuse admission to Huerta. Caranza is as much of a scoundrel as Huerta, and lacks his force of character.

It is reported that the British and French are fishing for German submarines with great iron nets, and that they have already snared one of the undersea terrors near Dover.

Willard's trip up the Florida East Coast, from Key West to Jacksonville, was one continuous ovation. Jess says he will draw the color line in future fights.

One reason why we may hope for better times is that much good American money that has been going to Europe every summer will remain at home this year.

F. Hopkinson Smith, the noted author, died at his home in New York Thursday night, aged 74 years. While Smith is principally noted as an author, he was an artist of talent and an engineer of much skill. The foundation for the statue of Liberty in New York harbor is his work.

In its issue of April 8, the West Palm Beach Daily News credits three pertinent and well written paragraphs to the Star. The said paragraphs express our sentiments, but we did not write them. They should be credited to our esteemed contemporary, the Banner.

The Star is not surprised at the renewed attempt to cut a corner off Marion county. The people of Northwest Marion have their grievances, and the rest of the county has not tried as hard as it might to remove the causes of trouble. All the same, the Star thinks too much of the good people of that valuable section of our shire to let them go without doing all in its power to prevent.

In the trenches in Flanders a few nights ago, the British soldiers were, as usual, singing to while away the tiresome hours. The boys had sung everything they knew, and were resting a bit before starting over again.

Suddenly a Canadian thought of a refrain he had often heard across the American line. It was easy to put in the name most obnoxious to the allies, so he struck up, "We'll hang Kaiser Billy on a sour apple tree." His comrades caught on at once, and soon the notes of one of America's old-time war songs were rolling in waves across the bogs of Flanders. It is said that "Dixie" and "Dolly Gray" have also become popular among the British, but they haven't yet twisted themselves around "There'll be a hot time in the old town tonight."

United States Senator Johnson of Maine declares that President Wilson will be re-nominated and re-elected. Mr. Wilson has made some mistakes, but while his administration has had greater problems to deal with than any since Lincoln's, it has made fewer errors. The president has given the country the impression that he is entirely unselfish. He does what he believes is right unshrinkingly. And his administration has been free from scandal. The white light of partisan criticism cannot find where Mr. Wilson has ever favored or allowed sacrificing the public good to the gain of himself or any of his friends.

Dr. Harvey says it is not dangerous to kiss a lady on the cheek. We don't know how it is in Dr. Harvey's home town, but any man who goes along one of the streets of Ocala, kissing every lady he meets on the cheek, will soon be in the Marion County Hospital. And we can't understand why Dr. Harvey or any other man wants to kiss a lady on the cheek anyhow.

It is reported from Europe that Germany, being much discontented with the showing Austria has made during the war, is trying to sacrifice that country to Italy and Russia. The plan is to largely sacrifice Austrian territory to Russia, Serbia, Roumania and Italy in order to placate them. Germany will also give up some East Prussian territory to help make the buffer state of Poland between Germany and Russia. The Germans will recoup themselves by taking Bohemia and the German provinces of Austria, and will also retain Belgium. This arrangement will eliminate Austria from the family of nations, and the dual monarchy has been unlucky on the battlefield it is probably strong enough to put the kibosh on any such scheme.

The Ocala Star thinks so highly of Governor Trammell's message that it advises the legislature to simply vote it on the statute books and go home. That's high praise and good advice, but what about the legislative per diem that would not be permitted to functionate under this program and the oratorical fireworks that would never be "touched off." What's the good of a legislature without reverberating eloquence and at least sixty days pay for it?—Lakeland Telegram.

All the real work of the legislature could be done in ten days, and if the members were at home plowing or sawing wood the remainder of the time, the state would be better off.

DAMNABLE EFFICIENCY IN DESTRUCTION

Of all the inconsistent things in this world, the most inconsistent is the German complaint against America for selling arms and ammunition to the Allies. Germany has done more business in these commodities than any other two nations put together. In two great wars, the Crimean and the Japanese, the Russians drew most of their ammunition from Germany. In the Russo-Turkish war, the war with Greece in 1897 and the Balkan war, the Turks drew all their arms and ammunition from Germany, and many smaller nations have been similarly supplied. War is wicked, and it is terrible for the young men of the Fatherland to be blown to pieces by American shells, but the Germans had no consideration for British and French, Russians and Japs, Greeks, Serbs and Bulgars, who have been killed or maimed in thousands in past years by guns forged at Essen. The damnable efficiency of destruction has been nowhere so highly developed as in Germany, and if this war causes the Germans to turn their gunshops into plow factories, there will be a great decrease in human misery. Another thing is, that if the sea was open to the Germans, they would be buying from America as extensively as the allies are.

GOVERNOR RECOMMENDS MARKETING BILL

Governor Park Trammell in his recommendations to the legislature covered in his lengthy and comprehensive message the establishing of a state marketing commission along the same lines as laid out by the Marion County Board of Trade, which body has drafted its bill and sent it widespread over the state and will have it introduced in the legislature in the next few days.

STRIVING FOR HIS SECTION

Mr. Paul H. Nisle, the able and industrious editor of the Dunnellon Advocate, on his recent visit to Ocala, went before the board of commissioners and secured recognition for his paper from that body.

Mr. Nisle is doing good work for his town, keeping up a very neat and newsy paper, in which he steadily boosts for his community and section. He has not been disheartened by the shutting down of the phosphate mines—Dunnellon's chief industry—owing to the war, but has kept his paper up to its usual standard, and never passes up an opportunity to print an encouraging paragraph. He is wide awake to the agricultural resources of the country around his town, and is assiduous in gathering all news that goes to support this very tangible theory.

OLD FIRM IN NEW HANDS

More than twenty years ago the Ocala Bottling Works was an established business institution in Ocala. The business has gone on ever since, never closing down or shutting its doors, and although under several different managements, has gone right on during all of those years, carrying out its mission of supplying soft drinks for the thirsty of this section of the state. In those early days Mr. E. C. Smith, still a resident of Ocala, had the property. Mr. H. C. Jones came in with him later and has had an interest in the business, as far as we remember, thru all of its career since, though not always its active manager. During these years the company has seen many other businesses come and go, spring up and flourish and pass away until its founders can look back and its present owners can recall with pride that there are not a great many businesses in the city that antedate the Ocala Bottling Works.

Several years ago Mr. Jones incorporated the business and as it then was and has since been the agent in this territory for Coca-Cola, incorporated under the name of the Ocala Coca-Cola Bottling Works.

Something over a year ago he sold most of the stock to Mr. T. H. Bennett of Hawkinsville, Ga., and his associates and retired from the management of the business. Mr. Bennett has conducted the business in a business-like manner, added to the friends and customers that Mr. Jones made and kept most of the old ones, but Mr. Bennett's health was failing and he had to get into the open.

He has sold the business to some young men who come to us with experience and vigor, the health, strength and financial backing to make the fortunes of the Ocala Coca-Cola Bottling Works hum.

These young men who are now in charge, the formal transfer of the business having been made a few days since, are Mr. H. R. Dehon of Albany, Ga., the president and manager of the company. He is a cousin of the late William Dehon of this county and St. Petersburg, has a young wife and two children, who will shortly join him to make their home in Ocala. Mr. N. T. Mitchell, also a young man from Albany, as well as the vice president and secretary-treasurer, Mr. E. H. Kalmon, who will continue to reside in Albany, making the plant an occasional visit.

This corps of experienced soft drink bottlers expect to make business grow and the machinery of their plant to hum during the warm weather now approaching. The strong competition that now confronts them does not daunt them one whit, and they expect to put out more of the drink that has made Mr. Candler both rich and famous, than was ever bottled before in this section.

Mr. Bennett had recently almost rebuilt the machinery of the plant, putting in as modern and as economical an outfit as money could buy. There are four up-to-date bottling machines, a Miller rinser and conveyor that washes the bottles, takes them around on a belt to the hands of the bottlers and brings the filled bottles away; a huge washing machine that thoroughly washes the bottles in a 300-gallon solution of caustic soda, heated, if necessary; a big electric water filter, purifier and softener, through which all of the water that goes into the bottles first passes before being carbonized.

All of the machinery is operated by electric motors, the entire room is of brick with clean white walls, the entrances are screened and the syrup room is screened to itself. Purity and cleanliness is paramount and will always be first in the plant.

There are now two White autos used in the delivery service and another big truck will soon be secured with a powerful motor. With these the nearby deliveries and gathering of empty cases and bottles will be made. Regular daily trips will be made to the territory and prompt service is assured to the "selling force." Messrs. Dehon and Mitchell will keep all of the present employees, all of whom are efficient, skilled men, and some have been with the business for many years.

The Star wishes the young men all success and believes there is plenty of business here for them as well as for all engaged in the business.

AGATHERIDAN SOCIETY

The Agatheridan Society held its regular meeting Friday afternoon. After the minutes had been read and approved, the following program was rendered:

Subject, Bird Life of Florida.

Song by the school.

Essay, "The Enormous Number of Birds in Florida"—Ruth Rentz.

Essay, "Bird Refuges in Florida"—Ruth Hardee.

Recitation by Portia Lee Spencer.

Essay, "Legislation Needed for Protection of Florida Birds"—Myeth Brinson.

Essay, "The Florida Quail"—Marion Long.

As this was the afternoon for the election, nominations were made and the following elected:

President, James Hill.

Vice President, Alfred MacKay.

Secretary, Martha Kate Rentz.

Sergeant-at-Arms, A. Crago.

Sergeant-at-Arms, D. Osborn.

After the reports of the critics, there being no further business to come before the house, the society adjourned to meet again April 26.
